

Money Matters: Training plans, comics, escape rooms and an App are ready.

A new set of financial literacy educational resources for families, individuals and children is now available on Money Matters e-Learning Platform and App.

Are you good at looking after your money? Would you or your learners like to know more about financial literacy? Increasing our financial literacy skills can help us all look after our money, make better financial choices and increase financial inclusion? *

You can find out more at the Money Matters Conference to be held (in English) online via Zoom on Monday 31 October 2022 at 11:00 AM (UCT+1). Don't miss it out! Register now for free here!

Hello everyone! Educational resources for both trainers and families are now available. They aim to use a family learning approach to help empower people with the financial skills to cope with financial difficulties.

PILOT TRAINING

Between July and October, the pilot training for trainers and parents took place in the partner countries. More specifically, the three-day Train-the-Trainers training and the four-day Train-the-Parents training, attended by 10 trainers and 20 parents/guardians in each country, respectively. These pilot trainings provided the consortium with valuable feedback to make the latest improvements to the educational material!

E-LEARNING PLATFORM

The resources are now available on the Money Matters e-Learning platform. The e-Learning platform provides training programs for Adult Educators & Parents/Guardians and a Toolkit which includes Money Matters Comic Books, Escape Rooms and App

Register now to get the resources and increase your financial literacy skills, by simply clicking on the link below:

The Money Matters resources are designed and offered for online delivery and aim at supporting family learning through challenge-based educational resources and real-life case studies. After completing the online courses, you will receive a related digital badge which can be downloaded.

MONEY MATTERS APP

We are also happy to announce that the Money Matters App for Financial Planning is now available on the Money Matters e-Learning platform and on Google Play Store. The mobile application addresses key themes related to financial literacy, presents real-world scenarios related to financial literacy and financial management, provides a personal budgeting planner, and includes links and resources to national debt management agencies and support services! FINAL CONFERENCE

On the 18th of October 2022, a Money Matters Conference was hosted in London by Learning Unlimited! During the conference, participants were introduced (face-to-face) to the final outputs of the project and discussed the impact they will have on developing concepts such as financial literacy and family learning.

Let's explore and learn together!
