

Final Conference & Partner Meeting - Barcelona, Spain

On 17 September 2026, the Ašun Me partnership came together in Barcelona for the project's Final Conference, bringing together project partners with members and advocates of the Roma community in Barcelona. The event provided an opportunity to share the project's results, experiences and achievements, while also creating space for discussion around the participation, inclusion and representation of Roma young people. The conference marked an important milestone in the project, highlighting the work carried out to strengthen the participation of young Roma in civic engagement, policy dialogue and decision-making. It also provided an opportunity to reflect on the voices and experiences gathered throughout Ašun Me and to showcase the resources developed during the project. The following day, 18 September, partners held the final Transnational Partner Meeting to review the project's achievements, final activities and remaining steps ahead of the project's conclusion on 30 September 2026.

From Dialogue to Policy Action

Throughout the Ašun Me project, young Roma have been encouraged not only to discuss the policies and challenges affecting their communities, but also to contribute ideas for meaningful change. Following the national Digital Roundtables, partners translated the issues, experiences and recommendations raised by participants into concrete policy proposals. These recommendations have now been formally shared with around 30 relevant institutions and organisations across the partner countries, helping to bring the voices and perspectives of Roma young people directly to policymakers, public authorities and other key stakeholders. This marks an important final step in the project's journey from learning and participation to practical policy dialogue and advocacy.

Explore the Ašun Me Resources

Although the project is coming to an end, the resources developed through Ašun Me will remain available to support young Roma, youth workers and organisations beyond the funded project period. Through the Ašun Me project website and eLearning platform, users can access the project's learning materials and practical resources, including the Blended Training Programme, Arts Toolkit, filmmaking resources and other materials developed throughout the project. These resources provide practical tools for strengthening civic participation, policy awareness, advocacy, creative expression and collaboration between Roma young people, youth workers and decision-makers.

As the project comes to an end, the partnership celebrates two years of collaboration, learning and dialogue across six European countries.

From training and creative filmmaking activities to national Digital Roundtables and policy recommendations, the project has aimed to create more opportunities for Roma young people to share their experiences, develop their skills and participate in the decisions that affect their lives.

The Ašun Me project resources, experiences and recommendations will remain available to support continued learning, dialogue and advocacy.

Thank you to all of the young people, youth workers, stakeholders, organisations and partners who contributed to Ašun Me and helped bring the project to life.
